DIVORCE CANON DISCUSSED.

EPISCOPAL DEPUTIES ARGUE FOR AND AGAINST REMARRIAGE.

ent Proposed to Allew Innecen Parties in Divorces Granted for Adultery to Wed Again-Final Action Post poned Until Monday -Bishops Named.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11 .- All day the House of Deputies of the Episcopal conrention debated the canon regulating the remarriage of divorced persons, and when the session ended action had been postponed until next Monday when the will probably be taken. The speakers at the morning session defined clearly bute prohibition of all such marriages, as recommended by the House of Bishops. and the more liberal position of the Episco-Church at the present time, allowing innocent party in a divorce action to have a second marriage solemnized by a question, as such, is evidently not the chief concern of the deputies, the discussion soon drifting away from these more or less technical and rigid rules to the broader ground of the expediency of adopting one the other of the alternatives offered and the probable result upon the moral life of the country and upon the church and its relation to the people.

The discussion was opened this morning when F. A. Lewis of Pennsylvania explained the purpose of the clause requiring t ministers keep records of marriages. e Rev. A. Larabee Bartlett of Chicago contributed a note of gaiety to the occa-sior by protesting in all seriousness that the requiring the records of the ages provision requiring farties be stricken out as it would lead not only to embarrassment, but to untruth. There was a sittling down to business as the next article, the crucial canon forbidding the marriage of divorced persons, was introduced on behalf of the com-purpose of the canon to prevent any mar-riage. It was the purpose only to for-bid the selemination of certain kinds

The issue was thus fairly defined between the extreme radical position of the pro-posed measure of the Bishops, absolutely orbibiting the marriage of any divorced rson, whether guilty or innocent, and a modified measure, permitting the secent party to a divorce decree to marry

Thomas C. Elder of southern Virginia offered a substitute which referred instead of to a divorce decree to the records of the suit. He argued that often the cause of the ecree did not appear upon the face of the ecree, and in that case it was necessary the arguments and procedure Dr. Huntington accepted this amendment

Edward G. Bradford of Delaware supat the canon as it came from the House ishops and opposed all the proposed siments. He said: aring the last few years the granting of divorce has attained such alarming proportions as to menace the purity and happiness of the family. I believe it is the duty of the church to take action in this matter. I am in favor of universality of prohibition re-marriage of divorced people in es, no matter what the cause of di-was, for the reason that no other law licable. that the teachings of the Saviour himsel had been made inferior to the canon of this Church, and it would be a difficult matter for a Bishop to direct inquiring clergymen as to what was their duty.

The Rev. Dr. John C. Bacchus of Long Island said: "I believe that adultery is a deadly sin, so deadly that it disintegrates the bond of matrimony."

The Rev. Dr. J. Lewis Parks of New York opened the afternoon session by a speech in favor of the canon. He maintained that it was an attempt to raise the standard of marriage everywhere.

George H. Williams of Oregon, ex-Attorney-General of the United States, said: "I have known a woman to be ill treated or abandoned by a drunken, worthless husband. Why, if a good man wants to marry her, to give her children a good father and her a good husband, should the Church forbid her the right and forbid its ministers to marry her? As for public opinion, you propose to punish the individual to raise the standard of public opinion. vation of the results of the laws in Italy. There, he said, it had come about that in the desire to avoid divorce the enormous sin of adultery had come to be considered of little account so long as undiscovered.

The Rev. Dr. Reese Alsop of Long Island said: "Many of us wonder whether we dare attempt to be more strict than our Lord. As for expediency, you have met men who said they were brought up so rigidly in observance of a Puritan Sunday that the idea became distasteful. Take the extreme temperance laws. We know that such have tended to drive under the surface things which should be above ground, and we know which should be above ground, and we know that the result was worse than the former condition. Take celibacy in the Reman Catholic Church. It is known what that at-tempt to disregard God's laws of marriage

There was some attempt to bring the matter to a vote inmediately, but it was finally decided to continue it until Monday morning. The committee of the whole thereupon arose and the House adjourned until to-morrow morning, when it will consider the appointment of new Hishops.

The House of Bishops held an important session to-day. Five Missionary Eishops were appointed asfollows: Theflev Pr. James Addison Indle of Hankow, to be Rishop of Hankow, the Rev. Charles H. Brent of St. Stephen's Boston, to be Bishop of the Philippines, the Rev. Frederick William Keator of Dubuque, to be Bishop of Olympia; the Rev. "Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.
LONDON, Oct. 11.—The hearing in the case of Theodore and Laura Jackson was resumed in the police court to-day. The ast named is the woman well known in America as Ann O'Delia Diss De Bar, the spook priestess." There are a number of charges against the pair, one for obtaining money under false pretences from various young women, and others against the man for assaulting several young women while pretending to initiate them into Jackson's cult, which was known as the Theocratic Unity." When the case was called to-day 'Laura Jackson" requested that she be permitted to defend herself and her husband. The Court said she would be allowed to act as her own counsel, but not as her husband's.

Miss Vera Cregsdale, one of the young vomen who were duped by the Jacksons and who testified against them yesterday. went on the stand again to-day. She told of the initiation ceremonies of the peculiar order of the Jacksons. A red cross, a lamp and a bowl of water were used. She was also made to taste bread, wine and salt Then, later on, she had to submit to Jackson's advances, "Mrs. Jackson" promising her that no harm would come from so doing. Miss Cregsdale testified that she objected to this, but she was always compelled to submit after she was put under the supposed hypnotic influence.

Jackson cross-examined the witness. She maintained that all her statements in regard to the assaults were true. Jackson then declared that he was incapable of performing the acts charged and demanded an examination.

Mrs. Jackson (Diss De Bar) also questioned the witness. Miss Cregsdale insisted that the woman was present when the acts charged were committed. Mrs. Jackson became violent during the examination and was called to order by the Magistrate. The real names of the prisoners are said to be Editha and Frank. The case was adjourned until to-morrow.
